

MOWA Speakers Urge Conservation Of State's Natural Resources

Greatest Need Is Education

P. J. Hoffmaster Is Convention Speaker

P. J. Hoffmaster, director of conservation, told the Michigan Outdoor Writers Association Sunday night that although much knowledge has been acquired in the handling of natural resources, a big job in public education remains to put this knowledge to greater use.

"Since 1937 when the soil conservation district legislation was enacted, about 90 per cent of the land in Michigan in need of soil conservation has been incorporated in soil conservation districts," Mr. Hoffmaster said. "But only 12 per cent of this land actually has been improved through soil conservation methods."

The conservation director pointed out that four or five million acres of forest land in the state is in need of reforestation but most of this land is in private ownership.

"There is plenty of proof that reforestation pays off in dollars and cents," Hoffmaster said. He added that the job of getting private land owners to replant trees is a big one, progressing tediously.

The speaker told the outdoor writers and their guests that man has conquered nature to the extent of destroying forests and ruining the soil but the aftermath in floods, water pollution, etc., poses new problems that must be solved.

Director Hoffmaster reported that fears expressed from time to time that the state is facing depletion of oil resources are unjustified in the light of present day estimates. He said that there are 1500 billion barrels of oil in reserves, enough to last at least 700 years.

Water Blocks Are Advocated

Trout Impounding Called Necessity

Rainbow trout impounding is designed to increase the take of rainbows in Michigan, two speakers agreed at the Saturday night meeting of the Michigan Outdoor Writers Association.

They were Dr. John Kitchell of Grand Haven, a sports fisherman, and James T. Wilkinson, regional fisheries supervisor of the conservation department at Roscommon.

Rainbow Are Migratory
Dr. Kitchell said the rainbows had become such a problem that they were part of the whole trout problem in Michigan.

He said few rainbows are harvested and tools are needed to insure greater take.

He said rainbow are migratory in their habit and impounding is necessary but brooks and browns do not rove much.

Wilkinson said rainbows move from the Great Lakes into the streams too early in the spring to be harvested and that we are should be used to prevent their return to the lakes until fall fishing season.

Late fall season, he said, is one means of harvesting more rainbows.

"Let We Don't Know"
"There are a lot we don't know about rainbow habits," said Wilkinson. "Use of weirs is one means of learning more about them."

"In our impounding program, we must find the most economical plan. We must remember we are limited financially in the work we can do by the amount of money fishermen pay for their licenses."

Herb Bauer, outdoor editor from Battle Creek, told of damage being done in the lower peninsula in removing power dams and replacing them with diesel power.

Such action would cause great damage to lower Michigan duck and fish breeding grounds, he said.

He said the problem had been put up to the conservation department.

Nicholas V. Olds, legal adviser to the conservation department, said the department was making a thorough investigation to see if it could legally take action to prevent such a situation.

Is Michigan's Pheasant Propagation Plan A Flop?

The question of natural pheasant propagation, as practiced in Michigan, versus annual restocking as practiced in Wisconsin, was debated before the Michigan Outdoor Writers Association in Escanaba Saturday night.

YES!

Says Jay Fleming
Outdoor Editor
Jackson, Mich.

The state of Wisconsin will place nearly 300,000 live pheasants in the field this year, financed entirely from the sale of licenses issued by the conservation department, said Jay Fleming, outdoor editor of the Jackson Citizen-Patriot.

Recently returned from an investigation of pheasant restocking as practiced in Wisconsin, Fleming is one of a group of sportsmen from the Jackson County Conservation League urging Michigan's conservation department to adopt the "Wisconsin plan" for increased pheasant propagation.

Wisconsin—297,580
Fleming said in part:

In Wisconsin the birds are raised to an age of 12 weeks and then generally released in the state each spring, besides releasing additional number of pheasant just before the season opens. The total budget to release 297,580 pheasants in Wisconsin this year is $181,522, all paid for from game licenses.

Wisconsin's conservation officers and the sportsmen are sold on the annual restocking program.

Michigan—28,000
Other states conducting restocking are Pennsylvania, where 200,000 will be released this year, and New York, which will restock with 100,000 birds.

"Michigan annually restocks its trout streams. Why not pheasants?"

Last year Michigan released only 28,000 pheasants, and reports of high kill of pheasants have to be discounted because they are only estimates. Michigan does not know whether its "natural propagation" plan is working or not.

Backs Restocking
"Now they are sending men out in the field to count the number of growing cocks to estimate how many birds they have in the state. There should be some better way to put those men to work."

Michigan figures on total kill are in error, based only on percentage estimates of report cards from hunters.

The cost of Wisconsin restocking program is $1.67 per bird. "If restocking is no good—how did the pheasants get here in the first place?"

Great Lakes Red Book Published
The 1950 edition of the Red Book, a pocket-sized directory of Great Lakes shipping is now off the press of the Penton Publishing Co.

Sometimes called the "Bible" by mariners and other persons interested in navigation on the Great Lakes, the tony book lists some 1,500 vessels, both Canadian and American, the names of the captains and engineers and the capacity of the vessels.

An alphabetical list of all ships plying the inland seas of the Great Lakes and the St. Mary's River, is contained in the Red Book. Persons knowing the name of any ship can also find the name of the company which operates it.

Each year the directory is brought up to date, and is distributed to fleet managers, ship owners, and marine editors throughout the entire Great Lakes area.

For instance, last year, the Walter Inkster, operated by Sarnia Steamships Limited, was apparently placed in operation on the Great Lakes for the first time. It was not listed in the 1940 edition of the Red Book. However, this year, the Inkster is listed, and gives the name of the captain as P. Tetrault and the engineer as G. P. Sweetman.

The vessel is listed as being 253 feet long, 44 feet wide and 22 feet deep. The vessel can carry a gross tonnage of 3,300 tons at a draft of 20 feet.

In addition the Red Book contains a complete directory of ship-building yards in the Great Lakes region.

Writers Again Elect Gillies

Present Awards For Best Outdoors Work

Don Gillies, outdoors editor of the Detroit Times, was re-elected president of the Michigan Outdoor Writers Association at its business session at the House of Ludington on Sunday.

Jim McKenna, outdoors editor of the Grand Rapids Press, was renamed vice president, and Cliff Ketchum of Lansing, secretary-treasurer. The outdoors writers voted to meet in Manistee in October.

Present "Oscar" Awards

"Oscar" awards were presented to the newspapers, magazines and writers who made the outstanding contribution to conservation in 1949. Presentation of the awards was made at the banquet last evening by William J. Trepagnier, Detroit, editor of the AAA's Motor News.

Jack Van Coevering of the Detroit Free Press was awarded the "Oscar" for the best outdoors writing in 1949. Trepagnier explained that the judges made the decision largely because of Van Coevering's series of fine articles on the Tahquamenon Falls wilderness area.

The prize for the daily newspaper publishing the best outdoors page during the year went to the Bay City Times, whose outdoors editor is Bert Stoll of East Tawas. Second place went to the Detroit News and its outdoors editor, Kendrick Kimball.

In the weekly newspaper field, the unanimous choice of the judges was the Jonesville Independent, for its untiring and successful crusade against pollution of the St. Joseph river in Lower Michigan.

Outdoors photography awards were presented to John Herman of the Detroit News and Ray Voss of the Grand Rapids Herald, respectively. Special mention was given also to Jack Van Coevering for his outdoors television programs on Radio Station WXYZ, Detroit, and to Vic Beresford, editor of the Wayne County Sportsman.

Governor Goes Fishing
About seventy-five outdoors writers, conservationists and their wives attended the MOWA meeting, which closed with a noon luncheon today and an address by Gov. G. Mennen Williams.

The governor flew here this morning and went out for a couple hours of walleye pike fishing.

The outdoors writers enjoyed walleye fishing on Saturday, but rough waters interfered with their sport Sunday. Fine catches were made by Gordon MacQuarrie, outdoors editor of the Milwaukee Journal; Trepagnier, Gillies and others.

P. J. Hoffmaster, director of conservation, and Dr. Albert E. Heustis, state health commissioner, speaking at the banquet last evening, emphasized the need for better conservation of our natural resources. Hoffmaster stressed the importance of rapidly expanding the soil conservation program on agricultural and non-agricultural lands. Dr. Heustis urged municipalities to provide adequate facilities for sewage treatment so that the public may be protected against an unsafe water supply.

Support Escanaba's Bid
In brief talks, Fred Lutenberger of Zanesville, Ohio, past president of the Ohio Outdoor Writers Association, and S. C. Sundvik, president, Cook County Council, Illinois Federation of Sportsmen's clubs, pledged the support of their groups for Escanaba's bid for the 1951 national convention of outdoors writers. After the banquet, Jack Rottier, Milwaukee, representative of the American Forest Products Industries, showed attractive colored movies of the outdoors in Idaho and Yellowstone National Park.

Speakers at the Saturday evening dinner meeting included: Tom Kelly of Milwaukee, who gave an interesting talk on soil conservation; Jim McKenna, Grand Rapids Press; Jay Fleming, Jackson Citizen Patriot; Harry Ruhl, chief of the state game division;

Williams Deplores Cut In Conservation Funds

The state legislature was charged by Gov. G. Mennen Williams, in a noon luncheon talk to Michigan outdoors writers here today, with effecting "phoney" budget economies for political advantage.

The so-called "economy" is solely for the purpose of permitting a record to be made in advance of the November election for the partisan benefit of certain politicians, the governor asserted.

"The fact has been generally overlooked that both phoney and real cuts were made in the funds for conservation purposes," the governor continued.

"As you know, the conservation budget is divided into two main sections. Fish, game and law enforcement and educational work are supported by earmarked funds received from the license fees of sportsmen. These funds cannot, under present law, be spent for any other purpose. The forest fire protection, state parks, geological survey and public lands activities of the conservation department

End Pollution, Heustis Pleads

Health Commissioner Talks To Writers

Dr. Albert E. Heustis, Michigan health commissioner and chairman of the Michigan Water Resources commission, last night urged Michigan outdoor writers to join in a campaign to end the pollution of streams and lakes.

Every resident of Michigan should be a worker in health protection, Dr. Heustis said. Pollution must go if we are to live, he declared.

People need an adequate supply of safe water for good health; the intake of water by the individual often depends upon the quality of the water; and failure to control pollution can bring disease and death.

In 1900 there were over 5,000 deaths from typhoid fever, a water-borne disease, in Michigan, Dr. Heustis reported. In 1949 there were only 48.

Cannot Run Away

The decline is not caused by control of pollution but rather by the larger cities of the state "running away from pollution" by treating the water to make it safer for human consumption. The cities have found better water sources and are treating the water to remove pollution.

The program of water treatment is costly and does not solve the basic problem, Dr. Heustis declared.

In 1913 there were only 15 sewage treatment plants in Michigan. Now 141 cities serving 85 per cent of the population in those cities are served by sewage treatment plants and 54 other cities have plans to take their pollution out of the water.

Many Problems

Today's biggest problem is what to do for the treatment of human sewage from those people who live just outside the limits of the municipalities, Dr. Heustis said.

There is also a problem of rural sanitation that vitally affects the health of people on the farm, and those who come to Michigan to vacation. The state health department inspects resort sanitation issues approval where certain requirements are maintained.

It is impossible to run away from pollution, Dr. Heustis concluded. Waste disposal and water facilities must be improved. Pollution must be stopped by preventing it from getting into the streams in the first place.

We must halt pollution if we are to live, he said.

are financed out of the general fund.

Not A Dime Saved

"It is obvious that when the expenditures for fish, game, law enforcement and education are reduced far below actual revenues earmarked for this purpose, the taxpayers are not saved a dime. The hunter or fisherman still pays the same fee for his license, but he gets less service in return.

"That is exactly what the Legislature did. It cut $500,000 off the sums recommended for fish, game, law enforcement and conservation educational work.

"This half million dollars is not 'saved' to the taxpayers. It merely goes to swell the surplus of fish and game funds. It simply lies in the treasury, unused for the conservation jobs which the sportsmen of this state want done, and unavailable for any other purpose.

"In the course of this phoney 'economy' in conservation funds, the Legislature slashed six positions out of the undermanned game division. It cut $246,000 from the money needed to buy public hunting lands. In the fish division the alleged 'saving' was accomplished by the process of deferring necessary maintenance and repair and postponing the purchase of equipment.

"The most damaging cuts were in the law enforcement division. There, ten vacancies in the conservation force cannot be filled. Four officers are now on educational leave. If they return to their posts four conservation officers now on duty will apparently have to be fired. This in the face of the fact that our little force of officers are now covering an average of 320 square miles each.

"These severe and damaging cuts, mind you, save not a penny to the citizen who buys a license to hunt or fish. All they accomplish is to retain half a million dollars of the taxpayers' money unspent for the services for which the taxpayer has paid.

Legislature Has Power

"I should say that will be the only result if faith is kept in the future with our sportsmen. The earmarking of license fees for fish and game enforcement is not a constitutional matter. The Legislature has the power, if it chooses, to take this money away from conservation purposes and devote it to other things.

"When we see sportsmen's license money withheld from its proper purposes, and piled up in the treasury, we are entitled to suspect that the intentions of some legislators may not be entirely innocent. We are entitled to wonder if the real objective is not to raid these funds for other purposes after phoney economy has prevented their expenditure for conservation purposes.

"These suspicions are not far-fetched in the light of the persistent efforts on the part of some to 'recapture'—as they call it—funds segregated by the Constitution itself for the schools and other local community purposes. The Legislature has twice disregarded a Supreme Court decision to withhold from the schools a total of $18 million dollars which should have been paid to teachers' retirement funds. If the Constitution and the Supreme Court can be thus waved aside, what guarantee do we have that a similar raid may not be attempted on the conservation funds once a fat surplus is available?

"The budget adopted by the Legislature actually does not reduce state expenditures. On the contrary, it commits the state to spend millions of dollars more during the next fiscal year than we are spending now.

"But in the effort to make an appearance of 'economy' with which the public could be fooled, the Legislative leaders made drastic and severe cuts in many important state services. The conservation work which is financed by the General Fund did not escape this hatchet job."

Olds Explains New Statute

Wardens Will Get Police Powers

Nick Olds, assistant attorney general, told the Michigan Outdoor Writers association Saturday night, that when Governor Williams signs the bill giving conservation officers the power of peace officers, the bill will become immediately effective. The bill was enacted at the recent special session of the legislature.

Olds reported that the Michigan wildlife inspection act declared unconstitutional recently by the state supreme court had been modeled after similar laws in effect in Tennessee, Missouri, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, California and West Virginia. Supreme courts of several of those states had upheld the laws in their states and none had declared any of the acts unconstitutional, Olds said.

The conservation officers will be empowered to enforce any criminal act but by a directive of the conservation director, their work will be confined to conservation law enforcement except when called upon for assistance from other law officers, Olds said.

The new act, which Governor Williams is expected to sign, will not permit conservation officers to search dwellings but it will empower conservation officers, upon probable cause to believe that a crime has been committed, to inspect creels, boats, etc.

Louis Erickson Dies At Hospital; Funeral Tuesday

Louis Erickson, 73, of 917 Seventh avenue south, died Saturday evening at 7:40 at St. Francis hospital where he had been a patient for the past six days.

Mr. Erickson was a carpenter by trade and was employed by the Shepek Dimension Co. He was born in Trondheim, Norway, August 31, 1876, and had lived in Escanaba for 50 years.

'Here Rests In Honored Glory A Soldier Unknown But To God'

THE tomb of the Unknown Soldier stands high above the Potomac on a grassy slope in Arlington National Cemetery. Inscribed on its clean white marble are these words:

"Here rests in honored glory an American soldier unknown but to God."

Few memorials to our war dead catch so simply and nobly the spirit of dedication we feel toward our fallen sons. Unhappily too much sentiment, too much sculpture, too many words have often marred our memorials.

Red-Tainted UE Loses More Members

THE CIO's new International Union of Electrical Workers, created after the CIO expelled from its membership the United Electrical Workers Union because of Communist taints, last week won a 5-3 victory in the NLRB election of General Electric workers in 57 GE plants in the United States.

The results of the GE election follow a trend that was established soon after the CIO established its new electrical workers union. In a period of only a few months, the CIO-sponsored IUE has lured away about two-thirds of the UE membership since UE expulsion from the CIO.

The union election results show conclusively that American union labor is anxious to rid itself of Communist leadership. The CIO has done a particularly good job in fighting Communism in its ranks. The AFL, also a foe of Communism, has not faced quite the problem with Red leadership that the CIO has confronted. The Reds moved into the CIO ranks and became entrenched in a number of CIO unions in the early days of the CIO development.

The CIO's success in luring the members of the expelled United Electrical Workers union into the IUE is a chapter in American patriotism with which organized labor in this country may well be proud.

Last Of A Vanishing Race?

THE first man to drive a car through New York's new Brooklyn-Manhattan tunnel, second longest in the world, was a 31-year-old subway motorman named George Horn.

To Mr. Horn the experience wasn't unique. He was first through the Lincoln tunnel connecting New Jersey with Manhattan. He beat everybody else through the portals at the New York World's Fair back in 1939. He dropped the first nickel in the turnstile when a new subway line opened.

Reversing his field on occasion, he's been last in certain spots, too. He was the last rider on an old "el" line about to be torn down. As a trolley car operator, he took the last car over the Brooklyn Bridge before the line was closed for repairs.

But, tunnels, bridges and subways notwithstanding, New York's traffic gets more snarled every day. One expert thinks that before long the city may have to bar all but the most essential vehicles from downtown areas.

So, Mr. Horn may some day have the dubious honor of being the last man to drive a car in Manhattan without a permit stamped "essential."

This Is A Symbol Of Freedom

WHETHER or not you have ever listened to a note of symphonic music, you must admire the irrepressible spirit and energy that have taken Arturo Toscanini, famed conductor, on a taxing nation-wide tour at the age of 83.

Toscanini, of course, is a legend in the musical world. In everything he does he seeks perfection. His fiery devotion to great music is imparted to the men he leads.

Toscanini is more than a symbol of the dedicated artist. He has lived by principle in all fields. A lover of freedom, he refused to play the Fascist anthem in Mussolini's Italy. Time and again he stood firm against compromise with men who were bent on brutalizing human life.

Statesmen might argue that an artist can afford the luxury of living by principle, since he doesn't have to enter the brawling political arena where trade is the rule.

Maybe that's true. But a courageous statesman never yields the whole way. And the example of a man like Toscanini, clinging tenaciously to his beliefs, must surely hearten everyone who engages in the struggle for human betterment.

This Day

By Gordon Martin

Set aside some time for thinking on this hallowed holiday, and remember that its purpose isn't one of carefree play. And remember that the nation owes a debt to those who died, so their countrymen could live in peace and honor dignified. Ask yourself what part you're playing as the world for goodness strives, and above all else compose a prayer for those who gave their lives.

Keep a date with flaming pages and go back to Bunker Hill, where our soldiers paid the price of life to forge a nation's will. Carry on to bloody Gettysburg and Lookout Mountain too, when our men gave up their lives to open freedom's avenue. Hear the battle-cry of troopers as they stormed up San Juan Hill, and remember well their sacrifice and how they paid the bill.

Give a thought to carefree doughboys, Saint Mihiel and Belleau Wood, where both old and young fell fighting for your own enduring good. Never once forget Pearl Harbor or the gallant stand on Wake, and the hell and death of Anzio that never asked a break. Speak sincerely of these honored men and heed the trumpet's call, for this day we should revere the names of those who gave their all.

Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — This column is to be buried at Wichita, Kansas, to be dug up and read 50 years later.

The idea of such a column was evolved by Dick Long, editor of the Wichita Eagle who is burying a mid-century time cylinder at the Wichita airport. When he first asked me to write a column to be read 50 years later, I thought it was sort of a crackpot idea. But the more I thought about it, the more I figured this might be a chance to get some things off my chest I've been thinking for some time. So here goes.

To Those Who Read This In The Year 2000:

This is written in 1950, when the world seems very complex, very harassed and very uncertain. I don't know how much more complex it will be by the time you read this. But approximately 100 years ago, when my grandfather traveled to Kansas in a prairie schooner, life was much simpler. He pitched a tent at night almost anywhere he wished. There were no fences to bother him, no no-trespassing signs, no speed laws, no filling stations, no gasoline fumes. And when he got to Kansas he was able to settle almost anywhere.

In the hundred years that have passed since then, we have accelerated in complexities of life tremendously. And in the 50 years since my mother used to take me to Kansas as a boy, they have become accelerated even faster. I vividly recall seeing Indians in the Union Station when we changed trains at Kansas City, and that my cousin, who owned one of the first automobiles in Ottawa, Kansas, didn't have to worry about getting a license tag nor about parking problems.

Today, in contrast, you can hardly get your car against the curb in downtown Ottawa, while the airports veeen have to worry about parking or "stacking" airplanes overhead.

MECHANICS OF MAN'S DESTRUCTION

During the past 10 years the complications of life have accelerated fast than during the preceding hundred. Especially in the past 10 years we have accelerated the mechanic of human destruction.

In fact, I would say this was the most distinctive feature of our current decade, and that we are now at a turning point where man must learn to live with himself or else bring about his own destruction.

For we have now evolved not only an atomic bomb which can burn whole cities in a matter of minutes, but a hydrogen bomb which could smash the entire planet to pieces.

We have developed bases which make raving maniacs out of men, developing their lust to kill. We have devised germs which can be scattered over an enemy country in thousands of tubes, spreading disease among cattle, rust among wheat, and virus among humans.

We have invented rockets which, when fired into the air, shoot not in a straight line, but change their course with uncanny accuracy to catch up with a speeding airplane. And we have developed bombs which can devastate cities almost across oceans.

All this we have developed quite recently for we are now convulsed with fear.

THE AGE OF FEAR

I should say that as you in the year 2000 look back on the year 1950 you will probably describe it as the age of fear. And you will probably also say that fear is a bad master.

It was in 1950 that we really woke up from our sublime isolation.

Most of us alive today recall how the senate killed Woodrow Wilson's League of Nations because they believed we could remain isolated. We recall how at the London naval conference of 1930 the isolationists would not even let Henry L. Stimson sign an agreement to "consult" before a war broke.

Or as late as 1946, our delegates writing the United Nations charter at San Francisco insisted on the right of "veto."

But time has moved so swiftly, the weapons of war have developed so gruesomely that, in the five short years between 1945 and 1950, most of us regret that last remaining vestige of isolation — the veto.

Yes, this is the age of fear—and fear is a bad master. It is an age when we spend our time looking under the bed for spies instead of looking ahead; when politicians fluninate about past mistakes instead of striving to prevent future mistakes.

This is an age when we concentrate on things military until there is real worry we may go bankrupt, though the state of the world is fear, and fear is psychological—for which military might can bring no permanent cure.

By inference, Mr. Gasman makes the charge that public funds to finance this project were used to purchase materials for the job from other than local suppliers, and with high indignation calls upon the citizens of the community to rise and suppress such crimes. Now to make such claims, Mr. Gasman must have investigated beforehand, because he speaks with claims of high authority. After reading the article, I questioned him as to his source of information, but his only defense was to retreat behind a renewed claim that his information was correct. Assuredly, I do not know where Mr. Gasman received his information. He did not get it from me nor from any member of my organization. He did not get it from any of the suppliers

Take My Word For It . . . Frank Colby

WHAT'S THE ORIGIN

Q. Will you please explain the word canter, the easy gallop of a horse?—J. L.

A. The word is a shortened form of canterbury. It goes back to the days when medieval pilgrims paced their miles and paltries along the road to Canterbury Cathedral in England. The original expression was Canterbury pace, or gallop.

Q. Is blackmail so called because letters of intimidation are involved?—E. K.

A. Sorry, no. The mail of blackmail means "rent or tribute." Blackmail got its name in ancient England when bandits exacted tribute of cattle, money, or the like for the protection of villages.

Q. What is the origin of the expression "by Jimmy"?—J. E. M.

A. It's a corruption of "by Gemini." Gemini is Latin for "twins," and refers to the twin stars Castor and Pollux, which form the third sign of the Zodiac. It used to be fashionable to swear by Gemini.

Q. I have read of a Mexican named Jesus. What a serf!—Mrs. D. D. F.

A. It is not serf! In Spanish-speaking countries where Jesus is a fairly common given name. It is pronounced: hay-SOQS.

Put Your Finger On Any One of These Men: It's A Safe Bet He'll Become A General

By DOUGLAS LARSEN
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON —(NEA)—Take any graduating class from the Army War College, close your eyes and point at random to any one man in it.

It's a safe bet he'll be a general some day. If given the chance, the man you point to could be an outstanding statesman in any other branch of public service. As he stands there, just about any big company would hire him as an executive.

The Army War College, temporarily at Ft. Leavenworth, Kans., is the apex of one of the most successful educational systems in the world.

The Army's schools for officers are one of the big reasons America won World War II. They made the tiny, pre-war Army flexible enough for a handful of regular officers and enlisted men to transform millions of raw civilians into the greatest fighting force in history, in a miraculously short time.

They produced such soldier-statesmen as Generals Eisenhower, Bradley, Clay, Marshall, Collins, and others. They are the reason why General Eisenhower, for instance, who had never had previous combat experience, could step on the battlefield for the first time as a brilliant leader and strategist.

Every person who sees the system work at close range is astonished at its results. Gordon Gray, retired Secretary of the Army, calls it "the organization that has the most remarkable record of accomplishment in the whole field of professional education." He adds: "No other profession or group in the world provides a lifelong postgraduate education system as extensive as that set up in the Army."

The most significant part of the schooling starts after the officer has been graduated from West Point, or commissioned from another source. Actually, West Point teaches its undergraduates no more military science than the ROTC program of any college. And only 29.1 per cent of the regular officers today are West Pointers.

After two to five years' duty with the troops, an officer goes to the Branch School, for 10 months of technical training. After returning to troop duty for a couple of years, the officer, a captain or major by that time, returns for post-graduate Branch School courses. This prepares him for more responsible assignments. Every Army officer goes at least this far.

After a few more years of field duty, the top half of all the officers will go to the Command and General Staff College, permanently at Ft. Leavenworth. Their average rank will be major or lieutenant colonel, but in the classroom they will be simulated generals. The course is a little less than one year.

Those who have the best field records and have made the best scholastic records then get sent to one of two schools, after more field duty. Some go to the Armed Forces Staff College at Norfolk, Va., a unified school where they are taught the complicated business of running joint overseas operations, being task force commanders, or theater commanders.

Or they may get the equivalent of a doctor's degree at the Army War College, where their knowledge is broadened to include an understanding of top-level industrial, labor, political and international problems. A very few officers go to both of these schools.

Thus, after about 20 years of service these graduates have had four years of excellent schooling in many fields, have proven themselves as outstanding officers in the field and possess superior intellectual abilities. That's why they are destined to be generals and why any firm would snap any one of them up as an executive.

Then, for the most carefully screened senior officers, there are still two schools ahead, both in Washington. The National War College teaches the strategic considerations of global warfare. And the Industrial College of the Armed Forces instructs in the industrial aspects of global warfare.

In addition to all of that book learning, each year approximately 700 Army officers are sent to civilian colleges and universities for graduate work in such things as nuclear physics, law, international relations and journalism.

Good Evening . . .

By CLINT DUNATHAN

THE COLOR LINE—Discussing the subject of water pollution and its possible effect on the Menominee municipal water supply, Russ Johnson of Escanaba, U. P. engineer for the state health department, commented:

"People don't like colored water and it is costly for the city to use large amounts of alum. Not only that, when the wind is from the south or southeast, the bacteria count goes higher."

There were a few quips among the Water Resources Commission members about the color disappearing when you made tea and coffee.

Milton P. Adams, executive secretary of the commission, observed that the water in Escanaba has more color than that in Lansing, and the commission engineer also mentioned the color of the water drawn from Escanaba taps.

Note: Escanaba's deep well system was recommended by the state health department and state geologists. The color of the water comes from traces of iron. The city is now planning to enlarge its water filter plant and take more water from the bay.

ECONOMICS—Many of the municipalities and industries in the Upper Peninsula are unable to comply with anti-pollution orders of the state because of the cost of financing disposal projects.

John Sargent, manager of the Superior Sugar Refining company, Menominee, cited one basic reason for economics.

The beet sugar refineries all over the United States are in a precarious financial position, he reported.

This is the result of the federal government's world recovery programs, including the encouragement of world trade, Sargent said that sugar beet pulp can be produced in European countries, exported to the U. S. and sold here at prices below production costs in this country.

The ECA and the Marshall plan are fine for other countries.

REGIONAL COSTS—There are no state or federal grants to municipalities for construction of sewage disposal facilities, the Water Resources Commission advised one representative of an Upper Peninsula community. He thought there should be grants in aid for such projects.

One member of the commission (we have forgotten who) said that he was as well satisfied the federal government was keeping out of the picture.

"Federal grants would mean that Michigan taxpayers would be paying for a lot of projects below the Mason-Dixon line," he observed.

FISH LIFE—Harvey Washburn of the Menominee Conservation Club directed the attention of the Water Resources Commission to a 1943 study and report of the lower Menominee river by the U. S. Fisheries Institute.

The commission, with a copy on file, found the wording in the report confusing and could not determine whether fish life was harmed or benefited by algae in the water.

Washburn had other evidence, including an observation of fish dead in the river under the interstate bridge; and a reported 30,000 pounds of fish found dead in nets of commercial fishermen in Green bay this spring. The number of fish is declining, he insisted.

Ted Wisniewski of the Wisconsin water pollution committee, in Escanaba for the conference, said:

"I have talked with some fishermen there and they all told me they weren't getting any—but that's not unusual anywhere."

HOPEFUL—Some of the Water Resources Commission members stayed over the weekend to attend the Michigan Outdoor Writers convention—and to fish for walleyes.

So far we have had no reports of exceptional fishing success on local waters. But there is no pollution problem of consequence on the northern section of Green bay, so we suppose the pollution experts and the outdoor writers hit an off day—or they are poor fishermen.

Into The Past

10 YEARS AGO

London — Hard-pressed allied forces flooded the canals surrounding Dunkerque, their sole remaining port of escape from Flanders, last night in a desperate effort to block Adolf Hitler's victorious forces doubling their retreat to the sea, German victory was conceded in the bitterly contested battle of Flanders, lost by the allies as an immediate result of the Belgian army's surrender yesterday.

Escanaba—Norman Kitchaid, Fred Hinn and George Breault have been selected to attend Wolverine Boys' State in East Lansing June 20-23, Edward Moersch, commander of the Cloverland Legion post, announced today.

Manistiquie—William L. Norton was elected president of the Manistiquie Lions club at the regular meeting yesterday. He succeeds Ken Gunderman who has held the office for the past year. Delegates elected for the district convention were Dr. E. L. Schatzman, Ernest Eckland and Ken Gunderman.

20 YEARS AGO

Escanaba—The 20 typewriters stolen this past weekend from Escanaba Senior high school were found yesterday in a clump of bushes near Green Bay by a farmer who was repairing a fence.

Shanghai—The Northern Alliance rebels announced today the capture of 50,000 prisoners in a crushing defeat of Nationalist government troops in Honan province. The fighting, which began May 8 with Nationalist successes apparently had definitely turned in the rebels favor. The Northern Alliance, headed by Generals Yen Hsi-shan and Feng Yu-hsiang, has stated its object is to overthrow the "corrupt" Nationalist government and its "dictator," President Chiang Kai-shek.

Many Americans See Another World War

By MARQUIS CHILDS
WASHINGTON—Recently one of the Western European ambassadors stationed in Washington made a trip through the West. He covered some of the same territory that President Truman traversed in his tour.

The ambassador was startled to find that almost everyone he talked with spoke as though a third World War were coming, with everything settled except the time.

This almost-casual assumption seemed to discord oddly with the President's optimistic preachment about a bigger and better future for everyone.

Others traveling through the country tend to confirm the impression of the ambassador. It seems to me to be one of the most disturbing signs of the time in which we are living.

CHILDS

Would Change Europe
A third World War would mean the end of the Western Europe that we have known. It would very likely mean unparalleled destruction in this country. According to top military men responsible for planning strategy, the war could last at least 20 years and in such a prolonged ordeal the nature of our free society would be utterly transformed.

To accept this casually indicates in my opinion either ignorance of what another war would mean or a curiously blind indifference to the fate of humanity. It is high time to look realistically at what appears to be a fatalistic acceptance of the inevitable and, above all, try to answer the question:

Who wants war between the Soviet Union and the United States? It is possible, it seems to me, to discover three general classifications. The first is also the most inclusive.

Under it would come all those who have been displaced in Europe and Asia by Communist gains since the war. First and foremost are the Nationalist Chinese who still adhere to Chiang Kai-shek on the island of Formosa and with their representatives and their powerful lobby in this country with its American partisans and agents.

Might Restore Chiang
The belief is that with the United States victorious in a third World War Chiang would be restored to power in China. The assumption of the men around Chiang on Formosa is that the third global conflict has in fact already begun; that the Nationalists are in the front line; that the sooner America becomes directly involved the better.

One of the immediate goals of this group is to prevent any softening toward the Chinese Communist. Part of the strategy has been to encourage and assist the fierce attacks on the State Department in order to try to discredit American policy and those responsible for it. An immediate objective is to checkmate any change in the status of the Chinese delegation to the United Nations so that the Nationalists will continue to represent China.

Many Political Exiles
In the same classification are the exiles from Eastern and Central Europe who have been driven out of their homelands by Communist dictatorship imposed by Moscow. They, too, cling to the belief that only through a third World War can representative government—or something like it—be restored in their respective countries.

Many are brave and noble men who have suffered much for their beliefs and convictions. They are also often politically naive and pathetically determined to preserve the illusions of the past. What they resolutely ignore is the fact that atomic bombs used both strategically and tactically against advancing Russian armies could be expected to kill hundreds of thousands of their fellow countrymen and leave ruin and chaos.

These exiles have firm adherents in this country among Americans of foreign birth or origin. Included also would be elements in both the Roman Catholic and the Greek Orthodox churches cherishing the hope that through war the evil of communism can be exterminated and a decent order restored.

The second general classification covers military men who want a preventive war or something like it. In my opinion the number of such military men is comparatively small and to be found for the most part among theorists and highly articulate officers in the Air Force. They have held, with a logic that seems at times to have a desperate compelling power, that the United States should strike first while this country still has atomic superiority.

In the third classification I would put what might be called the ex's-ex-Communists, ex-Trotskyites and every other weird kind of anti-American credo. Included also would be ex-officials who have been frustrated or balked in one way or another in connection with communism.

Baseball Fans Get Rough Too

Rudeness On Rise In Sports Circles

By ROBERT C. RUARK

The recent rude gesture of Mr. Theodore Williams of the Boston Red Sox, struck me as a rather fitting commentary on the state of sport today.

Rudeness is on the rise, everywhere, and if a large group of people can be collectively rude to one man, it seems likely that some men will be rude right back without slyly the sanctity of our first fetish, baseball.

The bally air around major-league ball today is pretty constantly filled with obscenity, uttered in loud chest tones by both male and female fans. It is seldom good-humored razzing, but rather a built-in vicious baiting in highly personal terms.

Not on the Ticket
You may admit that man like Ted Williams is apt to stroke his injured feelings by reflecting that he will make $100,000 this year, while the bum who is calling him a such-and-such may be pressed for the rent. But there is nothing in the bylaws of baseball—nothing printed on the ticket—which allows a customer to cast aspersions on a performer's honesty, decency, or the reputation of his relatives. Nor is there any clause in a player's contract which requires him to revel in abuse or admire the abuser.

Mr. Williams makes an obscene gesture at Boston fans. Ty Cobb and Ben Chapman used to go into the stands after them. Leo Durocher broke the jaw of one heckler, while others held him, a feat that was considered something less than cricket by a minority, but was roundly cheered by a great many people. My old friend Birdie Tebbetts once inflicted considerable pain on a paying guest, after said guest dropped a basket of tomatoes on his head, knocking him cold, but nobody held Birdie's boy.

Protection from Morons
The responsibility of the paid performer goes just so far, it seems to me, in the direction of his consumer, so long as he does his job decently and in good taste. ON HER LAST CRUISE—Picture above shows the lake steamer "Theodore Roosevelt" outward bound from Benton Harbor dock on her last voyage. Her twin stacks cold, she was being towed by a squat tug belching smoke to a scrap heap across Lake Michigan in Milwaukee. Waving farewell is Captain Henry J. Delatre, whose career as a seaman is intertwined with the history of the 44-year-old Roosevelt. He first came aboard her as wheelsman in 1911 and left as her last commanding officer in 1946 when she was retired from service and laid up. Currently, Captain Delatre is in command of the S. S. Grand Rapids, now being outfitted in Benton Harbor for a summer run between Chicago and Michigan City, Ind. Captain Delatre watched the Roosevelt until she was a speck on the horizon. He turned away finally and caught sight of the cameraman who snapped the picture above. But nobody harassed Frank since he quit playing sociological Pied Piper and concentrated on his business, which is singing. Ingrid And Roberto Married By Proxy In Juarez, Mexico

ROME—(P)—Roberto Rossellini and Ingrid Bergman, whose widely publicized romance was climaxed last February by the birth of a son, were married by proxy Wednesday in Juarez, Mexico.

The nuptials in absentia broke through legal delays that had blocked the couple's path in the United States, Sweden and Italy since February, when Miss Bergman quit her film career to bear the Italian director's son.

The ceremony was performed at 12 noon (EST) by Judge Raul Orozco in Juarez, just across the Rio Grande from El Paso. The judge said Juarez attorney Javier Alvarez signed the register for Rossellini and Arturo Gomez Trevino, another Juarez lawyer, signed for Miss Bergman. Two witnesses were present—

Escanaba Bid Gets Support

National Outdoors Writers Invited

The Michigan Outdoors Writers association went on record at their closing business session this morning as supporting Michigan's and Escanaba's bid for the national meeting of outdoors writers in 1951.

The formal invitation will be presented to the Outdoors Writers of America at its annual convention at Moosehead Lake, Maine, in June. The meeting would bring about five hundred magazine and newspaper editors from the United States, Canada and Mexico.

The Michigan association voted an honorary life membership to J. Hammond Brown, of Baltimore, executive director of the Outdoor Writers of America, and C. A. Paquin, formerly educational director of the state conservation department.

Resolutions were adopted, expressing appreciation to the Escanaba Chamber of Commerce, the city of Escanaba, state conservation department, state health department and the Forest Service for cooperating to make the Escanaba meeting a success.

President Don Gillies was instructed to write letters to the fish division of the conservation department and the Michigan United Conservation clubs, asking them to make a study of the walleye fishing situation in Michigan waters.

Wm. J. Duchaine, Escanaba, was elected a member of the MOWA board of directors.

Gov. Williams Will Run Again, He Announces

YPSILANTI, Mich. — (P) — Governor Williams announced his candidacy for re-election in the same city where he launched his successful race two years ago.

The announcement, which was characterized as "informal," came as no surprise. Executive office sources said a "formal" announcement would be made at a later and bigger rally.

Apparently sentimentally attached to this, his wife's home town, Williams gathered most of the handful of some 35 close friends who were present to hear the first announcement to hear the second.

"We are here tonight," he said, "not as a little band enlisted in an unknown cause, but as soldiers in a mighty arm, pausing to take counsel in the midst of battle."

"Although we are outnumbered in Lansing, in both legislative and administrative offices," he said, "we have gained substantial ground."

him scream," Peterson said.

Then there was silence except for the sound of crackling flames around the stern of the boat. The tug moved slowly on for a time under its own power.

Stunned and shocked by the blast, Peterson and Pearson hung in the water, clinging to the rope until they were rescued by a tug boat that put out from the harbor. This boat is operated by Charles Meiers of Port Huron.

Peterson and Pearson were put aboard the tug Genevieve M. of Harbor Beach, now operating out of Escanaba, and taken ashore and to the hospital.

Search Continues

A dozen or more boats, including tugs, conservation department craft, and the U. S. Coast Guard launch from the light house station, joined in the search for Hanson's body.

After the initial rescue the other boats stayed back from the burning tug, fearful there might be additional explosions of gasoline.

The MMC lay smoldering, paint peeling from her steel hull and upper structure by the intense heat within. Occasional black clouds of smoke poured out to drift across the almost calm waters of the bay.

The victim of the blast is survived by his parents, his grandmother, Mrs. August Olson of Gladstone, three sisters and five brothers—Helen, Alvina, Paul, Betty Lou and David.

Frank E. Hanson Sr. is employed at the Jensen & Jensen fish house, and the youth had become interested in fishing and this spring took a job on the MMC.

Letter 3 Years Old Pops Up As Clue In Buggy Siegel Death

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. — (P) — A three-year-old letter has popped up as a possible clue to the 1947 gangland slaying of Benjamin (Gugsy) Siegel.

Police Chief Clinton H. Anderson said the letter, uncovered by Archie Wells, chief of police in Las Vegas, Nev., apparently was written in the home of wealthy Virginia Hill on June 20, 1947. Anderson said the letter mentioned Miss Hill, a man and another woman. He declined to give their names.

In Las Vegas, Chief Wells also declined to give names or details, but quoted a portion of it: "When we had a meeting out there (Las Vegas), I knew the fireworks were going to happen."

Chief Wells said he found the letter in a police file during an investigation he is undertaking. Siegel was co-owner of the Flamingo club and prominent in Las Vegas gambling circles, as well as here.

man and Russian Communist leaders stood. Their fathers and old brothers broke into similar frenzies 10 years ago near the same place. Most of them are dead now—following Hitler's ill-fated star.

Such memories seemed to occupy the thoughts of the few thousands of older people lining the Unter Den Linden to watch the march of defeat was still fresh in their minds. They looked chilled and apathetic as they watched the machine-like performance.

It was difficult to tell about the youngsters. It was impossible to know how deeply the Soviet hate-the-west propaganda had sunk into their minds.

Some looked as though they would have traded the whole affair for a couple of oranges or a stick of candy. They were wet, cold and probably would much rather have been at home, or sightseeing on their own.

Others had the attitude of fanatics. There was no doubt of lone fact, however. All were automatons firmly in the grip of their Communist leaders. They cheered when they were supposed to and did as they were told, without question, if not with enthusiasm.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear daughter and sister, Marilyn Willette who passed away two years ago tomorrow, May 30, 1948:

I cannot say and I will not say That she is dead... she is just away!

With a cheery smile and a wave of the hand She has wandered into an unknown land And left us dreaming how very fair

It needs must be, since she lingers there, And you—O you, who the wildest yearn

For the oldtime step and the glad return Think of her faring on, as dear In the love of There, as the love of Here;

Think of her still as the same, I say, She is not dead... she is just away!

Sadly missed by Mother, Brothers and Sisters

Bears Lose Home Opener To Trenary On Wild Toss

The Escanaba Bears lost a 4-3 decision to Trenary in the Rainbow league opener at City diamond here Sunday afternoon before a large crowd of fans. Tuesday the Bears will play Bark River here in an exhibition Memorial Day feature.

Four of the first five Trenary batters to face Jack Beck, Bears' hurler, touched him for base hits but after that Beck settled down to pitch an excellent game. He allowed only three scattered hits the last eight innings.

Battling impotence proved the Bears' undoing. They left 10 men on bases and scored only four hits, all singles, off two Trenary pitchers, Begovac and George Brown. Begovac encountered a streak of wildness and was relieved by Brown in the fifth. Brown struck out the side in that inning.

Trenary scored what proved to be the winning run in the sixth inning. Hoppala scored from third when Beck, trying to pick Latvala off first, hit the baserunner with the ball.

The defeat gave the Bears a 1-1 record in the Rainbow league. Next Sunday they will play at Chatham.

Hoosiers Cop Track Title In Big Ten

CHICAGO—The state of Indiana had carved a chunk of big 10 sports glory today, with Indiana University hailed as the outdoor track champion and Purdue as the conference golf king.

The tennis crown will go on the block today at Northwestern as conference players gather for their annual three-day meet. A three way fight for team honors looms among Northwestern, seeking an unprecedented fourth championship in a row, Michigan and Illinois.

Northwestern's Grant Golden is favored for the singles title. At Evanston Saturday, Indiana scored 37 points—second lowest total in the meet's history—to win in conference outdoor track title by a whisker. Illinois and defending champion Minnesota tied for second with 36, followed by Wisconsin with 31, indoor champion Ohio State with 25½, Michigan with 23, Iowa 14, Purdue 12 and Northwestern 10.

There were no records. Notable feats included the third consecutive titles in both the 100 and 220 yard dashes won by Indiana's Charlie Peters. Wisconsin's Don Gehrmann became the first athlete in conference history to win four straight mile titles. He also took the 880, his first triumph in that event in an outdoor league race.

McEwen Wins
Other champions were Michigan's Don McEwen in the 220 yard hurdles; Minnesota's Byrl Thompson in the discus and Jim Horning's surprise in the high jump; Iowa's Russ Meriel in the 120 yards; Wisconsin's Leroy Collins in the 440 and mile relay team anchored by Gehrmann; Northwestern's Jim Holland in the broad jump; Indiana's Cliff Anderson in the shot put and Illinois' Don Laz in the pole vault. At Columbus, O., Purdue copied the gold laurels, totaling 1,465 strokes for its five-man team in 72 holes. Ohio State was second with 1,510 and Michigan's defending champions third with 1,516. Other totals—Minnesota 1,528, Indiana 1,550, Illinois 1,551, Iowa 1,555, Northwestern 1,560 and Wisconsin 1,567.

Felch Beaten By Perronville

FELCH—The Johnson brothers, Art and Glen, went on batting spree here Sunday to lead Perronville into another easy Trinity league victory.

Their Perronville team ground out an easy 14-2 victory over Felch.

Art, a third baseman, got five out of six hits, while his brother, Glen, a second baseman, got three FOUR WAYS—Andy Stanfield will seek a quadruple win next month at the NCAA meet in Minneapolis. The Seton Hall flyer is prepared to run the 100, 220 and 220-yard low hurdles and broad jump. This is how he looks on top. The others are, left to right, Penn State's Wilbert Lancaster, Manhattan's Joe Cianciella and Michigan State's Fred Johnson.

Wisconsin Wins 2 From Minnesota

CHICAGO—(P)—Selection of a fourth district representative for the NCAA championship baseball series at Omaha June 15-22 may be determined only after a play-off.

With Michigan and Wisconsin sharing the Big Ten pennant and several other strong teams entering bids in the district, John Kobs of Michigan State, selection committee chairman, said today "there is a strong possibility of a play-off."

"Several teams besides Michigan and Wisconsin are under consideration," he said. "Several things are to be ironed out in the next day or two before anything becomes definite."

Western Michigan and Ohio University are among contenders for the berth.

Wisconsin swept a two game series with Minnesota, 9-8 and 2-0, while Michigan downed Ohio State 6-2 and 7-3 to end their conference seasons with identical 9-3 records. Iowa took third place with 8-3 after walloping Northwestern, 6-0 and 15-2.

Browns Prove Tiger Cousins

Detroit Wins Two Games Sunday

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—(AP)—What's helping keep the Detroit Tigers right up there in the American league pennant race?

Their hitting has something to do with it, and their pitching and fielding has been pretty fair.

But a lot of the reason is the ability to wallop the St. Louis Browns regularly.

The Bengals swept a four-game series with the Brownies here Sunday, taking both ends of a double-header, 6 to 2, and 2 to 1.

The twin wins were their sixth and seventh of the year over St. Louis, as against one defeat.

One-third of the Tigers' 21 wins now have been scored at the expense of the benevolent Brownies.

The dual victory put the Detroiters only two games behind the league-leading New York Yankees.

In the nightcap, veteran hurler Dizzy Trout demonstrated he can be trusted with a starting assignment.

He limited the Brownies to five hits, to take the 2-1 decision. He drove in one run himself, after Johnny Groth and Bob Swift both had doubled.

Freddie Hutchinson, sidelined since mid-May with an arm ache, notched his fourth victory of the year in the opener. He was aided by a 13-hit assault by his teammates.

In the first inning Vic Wertz banged out a homer with George Kell aboard, for a two-run lead.

The Tigers are idle today, before taking on the Cleveland Indians in a Memorial day double-header at Detroit.

Manistique Mail Carriers Hosts To Association

The annual convention of the Upper Michigan organization of National Rural Letter Carriers Association was held in Manistique Saturday.

The business session of the carriers was held in the directors room of the First National Bank, with Arthur Eichen, of Escanaba, president, officiating, along with Hugo J. Tenhunen, of Ishpeming, vice president, and Oscar Anderson, of Wallace, secretary-treasurer. Guest speakers included Frank Gierke, Manistique postmaster; and Stella B. Paul, of Gulliver.

Newly elected officers are Hugo J. Tenhunen, Ishpeming, president; E. R. Monroe, Manistique, vice president; and Oscar E. Anderson, Wallace, secretary-treasurer.

The Womens Auxiliary meeting was held at the home of Mrs. E. E. Monroe, on Arbutus avenue, with the following officers in charge: Mrs. Arthur Eichen, president; Mrs. Hugo J. Tenhunen, vice president; and Mrs. E. Webb, secretary-treasurer.

The convention was concluded with a 6:30 banquet at the undercroft of Zion Lutheran church. Pastmasters and many carriers addressed the meeting. Souvenirs of the occasion were distributed by Ted Monroe, in charge of arrangements for the convention.

Deer crossing the road in the vicinity of Blaney Park were the cause of two serious motor accidents—on hour apart—on Highway U. S. 2 Saturday evening.

Shortly after nine o'clock a car driven by Herman Van Art, of Eaton Rapids, crashed into a deer just east of the Schoolcraft-Mackinac county line. The car got out of control, turned over and was badly wrecked. Mrs. Van Art, riding with her husband, was slightly injured and was treated at the Shaw hospital.

Shortly after ten o'clock a car driven by Wendell C. Pafford, of Bay City, was in a similar accident less than a mile from where the other accident occurred. No one was injured, however. The car was knocked out of commission and had to be towed to Manistique.

Judge Issues Warning
Judge Rannels accepted Wright's guilty plea and then said, "I understand that there are quite a few cases of this nature around here. It has got to stop! I may have to make an example of a few and I am going to do so in this case."

He then pronounced sentence. The law prescribes for this offense a sentence of from one to three years and that was the sentence in this case with a recommendation that the defendant be required to serve at least two years—in the state prison at hard labor.

"Others guilty of the same offense will get the same sentence," said the judge before announcing adjournment of the court until ten o'clock Monday morning.

Pistol Toter Sentenced
Also sentenced Saturday morning was Albert Archeneau, an Indian youth from L'Anse, arrested in Manistique on April 28 and charged with carrying a concealed weapon. The youth pleaded guilty to the charge and was sentenced to prison for a term of from three to five years with a recommendation that he serve four.

Before pronouncing sentence, Judge Rannels asked Archeneau where he got the gun. The boy admitted that he had taken it from a car at L'Anse. It was also revealed that he had served two years for grand theft and had received a dishonorable discharge from the army.

Finance officials report that many bills are found with penciled-on brassieres. These are most common around the town of Beuel, whose surnamed citizens last year caused an iron bra to be added to its famous nude statue of a washerwoman.

Truman Sees No Reason For U. S. Super-Government

WASHINGTON—(P)—President Truman said Thursday he sees no reason for a super government in this country.

That was his reaction to a proposal to set up a commission on national security to study security measures.

He said he is trying to run the government under the constitution and he will continue to do so.

His statement came at a news conference when he was asked for comment on a Washington Post editorial proposing the bipartisan commission.

The Post suggested the agency could survey such questions as fifth columns, civilian defense, development of new weapons and size and use of military expenditures.

Mr. Truman said work is going ahead on the defense budget for the fiscal year starting July 1, 1951, and a ceiling has been placed on the amount the military can spend.

He would not disclose the ceiling, but several weeks ago he said the next defense budget would be lower than the proposed outlay of around $14,000,000,000 in the year starting next July 1.

Mr. Truman said reporters would have to wait for the new budget before getting answers to questions about American defense readjustments reportedly discussed at the Atlantic pact conferences in London and touched on in Armed Forces Day speeches here.

On other matters, the president said he was against setting up a Fair Employment Practices Commission on a voluntary compliance basis. Some legislators are proposing that plan as a compromise for the president's request for an FEPC with power to enforce bans against racial and other discrimination in employment.

He said he does not intend right now to go into the situation involving Robert Denham, general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board. A reporter said Senator Humphrey (D-Minn.) had asked that Denham be fired.

Mr. Truman replied that he proposed a reorganization of NLRB under which Denham's independent powers would have been transferred to the board, but Congress rejected it. He added he had nothing to say for the present on any future plans in that direction.
